1 ½ Years

---

Case History Summary:

- Endometriosis
- Uterine adhesions
- Endometrium too thin for implantation
- Blocked fallopian tubes
- Advanced age for fertility

Natural Treatment Summary:

Becky, a happy mother of three children, wanted a fourth so that her youngest one had a playmate. Her two older kids were in high school and her four year old kept nagging for a little sister. Her husband on the other hand was very happy with three kids and did not want to contemplate a fourth one and was not open to any assisted reproductive services if needed. Becky secretly tried to get pregnant with her husband for a year but when her period kept showing up each month she decided to have a check up. Upon finding out that IVF would be her only option of getting pregnant Becky felt hopeless. Mainly because she knew her husband would never provide a sample of his sperm for IVF and he would also not be supportive (emotionally and financially) of IVF procedure as he didn't want any more kids. Becky did our program. I put her on my endometriosis protocol and gave her specific practitioner range supplements and dietary advice for unblocking her tubes. I did tell her that she should speak to her husband and get his consent regarding another baby, but she never told me if she did or didn't. She followed my advice, took the supplements and kept trying but didn't think there was much hope as blocked tubes are very difficult to treat naturally, which I told her.

Length of Treatment:

4 Months

Clinical Outcome:

After four months on the program she got pregnant. Her doctor could not believe it and cautioned her that due to her endometriosis and adhesions she could miscarry but she didn't. Becky gave birth to a healthy baby girl. Her husband is smitten with love for his youngest daughter and Becky is over the moon that her second youngest has a little playmate.
